ABSTRACT

A system for determining a temperature of exhaust gases from an engine is provided. The system includes an exhaust 5 gas sensor having an electric heating coil. communicates with exhaust gases from the engine. The system further includes an electrical circuit for generating a signal indicative of the resistance of the heating coil when Finally, the system includes a the coil is not energized. signal and calculating controller receiving the temperature of the exhaust gases based on the signal.

10